Accountability Commission is asking us to do, but I just...I just threw that out as a possibility of a little bit more modified direction that we could go if it became necessary.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Thank you, Senator Schimek. I would like to ask Senator Beutler a question.

PRESIDENT MAURSTAD: Senator Beutler, would you yield.

SENATOR BEUTLER: Yes.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Senator Beutler, how do you feel about what Senator Schimek suggested?

SENATOR BEUTLER: I think it makes perfect sense to go...to go through the list and distinguish individual ones, if there are some, or even if there are particular members of particular boards who have been identified in statutes as having to come from particular financial backgrounds anyway. It is the broad brush approach that is troublesome to me, and beyond that in terms of the burden of the proof, it would seem to me that we ought to cut out this broad brush approach and let the proponents come back with a narrower approach rather than forcing those on the floor who haven't dealt with this matter and are not responsible for it to...forcing them to review, go back and review all the boards and do the background kind of work that probably none of us are going to be able to do.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Thank you, Senator Beutler. Now I would like to return to Senator Schimek, if she would answer a question.

PRESIDENT MAURSTAD: Senator Schimek.

SENATOR SCHIMEK: Yes.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Senator Schimek, suppose we would adopt Senator Beutler's amendment, then we'd have what those philosophers, at least one of them, calls the tabula rasa, or a clean slate, and then we would begin to write on that slate the particular boards or however you identified them that perhaps could be eliminated or exempted without doing any damage to what some of us are concerned about. Would you be willing to do
